I. Committee on Three-Year Review

In a tenure-track Assistant Professor’s fifth probationary semester, the Head appoints a committee of three tenured departmental faculty to evaluate the candidate’s record of research, teaching and service, in accordance with Appendix to these bylaws "Procedures for Third-Year Review," and with the Office of the Provost Communications No. 9 "Promotion & Tenure," & No. 13, "Probationary Period/Tenure Track." It reports to the Committee on Promotion to Associate Professor with Tenure, whose members then make their recommendations to the Head.

P.  Academic Integrity Violation Appeals Committee

The Academic Integrity Violation Appeals Committee considers appeals of departmental decisions regarding alleged violations of academic integrity, as outlined in the “Policy and Procedures on Appeals of Decisions regarding Violations of Academic Integrity” (included in the Addenda to the Bylaws). The faculty annually elect three of their number as members for the following academic year. The Head then appoints one of the three elected members as committee chair. The chair is responsible for assuring that a record of the committee’s investigations, deliberations, and recommendations is forwarded to the Head.

Each appeal must be considered by a hearing committee. For each appeal brought before it, the hearing committee will be formed by the entire Academic Integrity Violation Appeals Committee, excepting cases in which one or more members of the standing Appeals Committee have a clear conflict of interest. Any committee member having a clear conflict of interest in a given case will be replaced by another tenure-track faculty member, to be appointed by the head. Further, any student filing an appeal may request that any committee member with a perceived conflict of interest be replaced by a new tenure-track member, to be appointed by the Head.

Q.  Grievance Committee

The Grievance Committee considers formal grievance filed by graduate students, as outlined in the “Policies and Procedures on Grievances by Graduate Students” (included in the Addenda to the Bylaws).

The faculty elect three of their number as members for staggered terms of two years each. In addition, the graduate students shall elect two of their number to serve on the committee for staggered terms of two years each. The senior faculty member in terms of service on the committee serves as chair. The chair is responsible for assuring that a record of the committee’s investigations, deliberations, and recommendations is forwarded to the Head.

Each grievance must be considered by a hearing committee. For each appeal brought before it, the hearing committee will be formed by the entire Grievance Committee, excepting cases in which one or more member of the standing Grievance Committee have a clear conflict of interest. In case of conflict of interest, the Head will appoint a new hearing committee member of the same category (faculty or graduate student) to replace the member having a conflict of interest. Further, any student filing a grievance may request that any committee member with a conflict of interest be replaced by a new member of the same category, to be appointed by the Head. Graduate students filing grievances may also request that no graduate students serve on their hearing committees.

R: Annual Performance Review Committees

In accordance with the procedures outlined in Section VI.A, the performance of each assistant professor with a departmental appointment of at least .50 will be reviewed annually by a committee composed of all departmental faculty members holding the rank of associate professor or above who hold a departmental appointment of at least .50. The performance of each full professor will be reviewed by the Head in consultation with the Director of the School. The performance review of specialized faculty and Academic Professionals will be performed by the Head and the members of the advisory committee.

III.2 COMMITTEES: Ad Hoc Committees

A. Recruiting and Selection Committee(s)

When seeking to hire faculty for tenure track positions, the Head appoints a recruiting committee made up of at least three tenure-track faculty members, one of whom the Head designates as chair. The recruiting committee reviews applications and, in accordance with the published position announcement, selects and interviews finalists. The committee makes a hiring recommendation to members of the tenure-track faculty who hold a departmental appointment of 50% or more, who then vote on that recommendation by paper ballot. Recommendations for appointments that are approved by a majority of voting tenure-track faculty members are submitted for the Head’s approval. The Head subsequently makes his/her recommendation to the Dean of the College.

B. Other Ad Hoc Committees

Other ad hoc committees may be appointed by the Head as the need arises.

IV. MEETINGS

A. Rules

All meetings of the faculty or of committees are governed by the current edition of Robert’s Rules of Order. The departmental Parliamentarian shall serve as the final authority on the interpretation of those Rules.
B. Meetings of the Faculty

B.2 Except for clear emergencies, the call for a meeting and its agenda are distributed and posted at the meeting place at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting.

B.3 A quorum for the transaction of business at any meeting of the faculty (except for a meeting called to amend these Bylaws) consists of one half of the members of the faculty as defined in Article IA, plus one other.

B.4 A petition to call a faculty meeting may be addressed to the Head. In the Head's absence, the petition may be addressed to the Associate or Acting Head. In the absence of an Associate or Acting Head, a petition may be presented to the most senior member by rank of the Advisory Committee. The petition must be granted if signed by at least one fourth of the faculty. Except for clear emergencies, the call for a meeting and its agenda are distributed and posted at the meeting place at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting.

V. ELECTIONS AND VOTING PROCEDURES

A. At faculty or committee meetings, voting may be conducted by voice vote, a show of hands, or by written ballot. A written ballot will be used for all personnel issues and when any faculty member requests one. A request for a written ballot must be honored by the Head or committee chair. When a written ballot is used, the Head or committee chair will appoint at least two tellers to count the votes and announce the results.

B. All votes taken outside of departmental meetings for the election of committees, senators, or for other matters of business shall be conducted through a secure online website or by paper ballot. When paper ballots are used, they shall be deposited in a sealed box to be kept in a secure place. After the election two duly appointed tellers shall tally the votes and report the results to the Head or committee chair, or his/her representative, who will make them known to the faculty expeditiously. Records of all ballots, electronic or paper, will be kept on file in the department for a period of 12 months.

C. Elections for positions on departmental committees whose members are not appointed by the Head shall be held within two weeks before the last day of the spring semester, for positions effective the following academic year. In the case of elections for newly-formed committees featuring staggered terms, half of the candidates elected, chosen by lot, will be given one-year terms.
C. Absentee or proxy voting is not permitted.

VI. ANNUAL REVIEW AND SALARY INCREASE

A. Annual Goal-Setting and Performance Review

A.1. The Head meets with each faculty member at least annually to discuss recent progress in meeting the missions of the unit and goals for the future. It is the Head's responsibility to ensure that such meetings take place at least annually, but the faculty member may also request such a meeting at any time.

A.2. Every year, upon the Head's request, each tenure-track faculty member shall present the Head with an annual activity report and self-assessment of progress toward goals, along with a current curriculum vitae. The deadline for the submission of these documents will be set by the Head.

A.3. The annual activity report and self-assessment file for each faculty member will be evaluated by the appropriate Performance Review Committee, as described in Section II.R. The committee will forward its evaluation and recommendations to the Head.

A.4. During the year in which a tenure-track faculty member is undergoing the Third-Year Review or a Promotion/Tenure review, this procedure may be omitted.

B. Salary Increase

The Head recommends to the Dean of the College the percentage amount of salary increases, if any, for each faculty member. In making these recommendations, the Head will consider the evaluation and recommendations of the Performance Review Committee, in conjunction with any supplemental material.

VII. PROMOTION AND TENURE

A. Policy

The policy statements of the University, the Campus, and of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences concerning promotion and tenure are hereby incorporated into these Bylaws by reference.

B. Criteria

The basic criteria are demonstrated quality of research and of teaching. Significant fulfillment of academic, administrative and/or public service is also considered as an enhancing or compensatory factor.

C. Promotion to Associate Professor with Tenure
In the year prior to an assistant professor’s consideration for promotion, and following the criteria set out in the Office of the Provost Communication number 9, the Head will appoint a review committee (see III.1, I above) to assist in the evaluation of the candidate’s credentials, to report to the Tenure and Promotion Review Committee and advise him/her on their findings.

For promotion to Associate Professor with tenure, the Department—following III.1 H of its By-laws—has a committee of all tenured faculty examine the credentials of possible candidates for tenure and associate professorship. In examining such credentials, attention is directed to three main areas: research, teaching, and service. The published material of the candidate is read and evaluated by members of the tenure committee, and these evaluations are supplemented by those solicited from the outside. Publications are examined for promise of distinction in a particular field with a sufficiently sustained production that demonstrates that the candidate has made his or her mark in advancing knowledge in a particular area of research. Attention is given to performance in the classroom in evaluating such candidates. Teaching is examined by peer evaluation of instructional materials, by consulting testimonials from faculty and/or former students, and by referring to ICES forms.

After due and informed consideration of each individual case, the Committee on Promotion and Tenure renders a judgment (by secret written ballot), as to whether the contributions of the Assistant Professor have been such as to justify promotion to the rank of Associate Professor. The Head will then communicate to the Assistant Professor, in writing, the judgment of the Committee with as much of the rationale for the judgment as may be communicated without violating the confidentiality of the proceedings. The Head then proceeds to make his/her report or recommendation to the Dean of the College.

D. Promotion to Professor

In order to determine whether a recommendation might be considered by the Committee on Senior Promotions, (III.1 G above), the Head periodically interviews each Associate Professor and they review together the latter's work and contributions (see VI C above). After these interviews have been concluded, the Head reports the findings to a meeting of the Committee on Senior Promotions; the Head then informs the faculty member of the committee's decision.

For promotion to Full Professor, the Committee on Senior Promotions examines the credentials of candidates in the areas of teaching, research, and service. Research is evaluated using the standard of attained distinction, and recognized national and international reputation. Committee members read materials and their assessments are compared with those of outside evaluators who are specialists in the candidate's field. Attention is given to performance in the classroom in evaluating such candidates. Teaching is examined by peer evaluation of instructional materials, by consulting testimonials from faculty and/or former students, and by referring to ICES forms.

After due and informed consideration of each individual case, the committee on senior promotion renders a judgment (by secret written ballot), as to whether the contributions of the Associate Professor have been such as to justify promotion to the rank of Full Professor. The Head will then communicate to the Associate Professor, in writing, the judgment of the Committee on Senior Promotions with as much of the rationale for the judgment as may be communicated without violating the confidentiality of the proceedings. In case of an affirmative vote, the Head then proceeds to make his/her recommendation to the Dean of the College.

VIII. RECORDS

All records involving personnel issues are confidential; they must kept in a secure location and, except in court cases, grievances, or review by a higher administrative body, may not be distributed except to the Head and, with the Head’s permission, to the Associate Head and to members of review committees.

IX. REVISION OF THE BYLAWS

A. The call for a meeting to amend these Bylaws must be distributed at least five working days in advance of the meeting, accompanied by the agenda and the text of any proposed amendment.

B. Any meeting to amend these Bylaws requires a quorum of two-thirds of the members of the faculty as defined in Article I, plus one other. These Bylaws may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the faculty members present and voting. Absentee or proxy voting is not permitted.

C. At least every ten years, the Head shall appoint an ad hoc committee to review the departmental Bylaws and propose such revisions as seem desirable.
APPENDIX 1

PROCEDURES FOR THIRD-YEAR REVIEW OF TENURE-TRACK FACULTY DURING THE PROBATION PERIOD IN THE DEPARTMENT OF SPANISH AND PORTUGUESE

(Amended October 2010)

Every tenure-line faculty member in the probation period (herein “Candidate”) must undergo a third-year review, as specified in the LAS Policy Manual (“Guidelines for Mentoring and Reviews of Probationary Period Faculty in the College of Liberal Arts) and in the Provost’s Communication No. 13 (“Review of Faculty in Year Three of the Probationary Period”). Within the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, the Head appoints a subcommittee of the Committee on Promotion and Tenure to conduct this review and to report its assessment to the entire Committee on Promotion and Tenure. Following are guidelines for the makeup of that subcommittee and the procedures to be employed in the review.

1. The Head shall appoint a subcommittee consisting of three tenured faculty members at the rank of Associate Professor or above. These shall be appointed by the Head. If possible, at least one person on that subcommittee should have a solid understanding of the discipline and/or area(s) of expertise of the candidate. The subcommittee should be appointed no later than the tenth week of the fifth semester of the candidate’s appointment. The makeup of the subcommittee shall be made known to the Committee on Promotion and Tenure and to the candidate at the same time as its appointment.

2. The official departmentally designated mentor of the candidate is not excluded from serving on the subcommittee, although the mentor may not serve as chair. In the event the mentor is not a member of the subcommittee, the subcommittee should consult with the mentor during its course of review.

3. The candidate shall prepare a Review Portfolio containing but not necessarily limited to the following materials:
   - A current curriculum vita, prepared following the guidelines of the Provost’s Communiqués 9 & 13.
   - A Research Portfolio that should contain all papers, books, and book chapters published, in press, or accepted for publication since the initial appointment at UIUC. At the discretion of the candidate, the Research Portfolio may also contain any papers or manuscripts in progress but not yet reviewed. The Research Portfolio must include a written narrative serving as a cover page in which the candidate describes his/her scholarly work since the initial appointment and outlines the direction in which the scholarly work is headed. (See Provost Communication 9 & 13 for guidelines and requirements of research statements).
- A Teaching Portfolio that includes ICES summary forms and written comments from peer observations, and, at the discretion of the candidate, syllabi, course packets, reading lists, grant applications for course development, and other pertinent material. The Teaching Portfolio should also contain a written statement serving as a cover page in which the candidate describes his/her teaching philosophy, impact on courses and course development, and other matters pertinent to instructional efforts. (See Provost Communication 9 & 13 for guidelines and requirements of teaching philosophy statements.)
- Any documentation related to service within and outside the unit.

The candidate should deliver the Review Portfolio to the Head, who will make it available to the members of the subcommittee.

4. As part of its review, the subcommittee should meet with the candidate for the purpose of clarifying any aspect of the candidate’s profile as well as to seek potentially relevant information not contained in the documents provided to it. This meeting will also serve as a time for the candidate to ask questions regarding the review and to add information regarding his/her profile.

5. Based on a thorough examination of the candidate’s Review Portfolio, the subcommittee will critically assess the candidate’s research (including a thoughtful evaluation of the major scholarly contributions); teaching; and the faculty member’s service contributions and development as a campus citizen. In its assessment of each area, the subcommittee will consider the candidate’s contributions as well as any aspects that might be improved.

    The subcommittee’s assessment will be presented orally to the Committee on Promotion and Tenure and to the Head at the official third-year review meeting.

    In preparation for this meeting, the final Review Portfolio will be made available to the entire Committee on Promotion and Tenure.

6. After the meeting of the Committee on Tenure, the Head prepares a draft letter to the Candidate, with copy to the Director of the School of Literatures, Cultures, and Linguistics, as well as to Dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences, communicating the results of the review. This letter will be considered the official third-year review document, and will represent the only formal written outcome of the third-year review process.

7. After approval by the Office of the Dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the final version of the third-year review document will be forwarded to the Candidate, with copies to the members of the Committee on Promotion and Tenure. The confidentiality of this document will be protected.

8. The Candidate may respond in writing to any document produced within the Department. A response to the official third-year review evaluation letter should be directed to the Head, with copies to the Dean and to the members of the Committee on Promotion and Tenure. All written responses will be included in the Candidate’s personnel file.

APPENDIX 4
SPECIALIZED FACULTY
(approved March 4, 2015)

Instructors and Lecturers

Consistent with campus guidelines, the title of Lecturer is reserved for individuals holding a PhD or equivalent engaged in providing classroom instruction. The usual teaching load for instructors or lecturers in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese is the equivalent of 3 courses per semester (or 6 courses per academic year). This teaching load may be reduced by agreement with the Head if the individual takes on other substantive duties that are comparable in workload to the course reductions; for example, heavy involvement in course administration can count toward a reduced teaching load.

In all instances, the majority of instructors’ and lecturers’ appointment must be composed of teaching duties rather than other activities.

Senior Instructors and Senior Lecturers

According to Provost Communication # 25, the designation of senior is appropriate when instructors or lecturers “have made significant contributions to the department’s teaching mission, including contributions to the curriculum.” These include a sustained record of teaching excellence as measured by ICES scores, peer observations and teaching awards; and significant contributions to the teaching mission through program/curriculum development, administrative service, or continued professional development.

Review for promotion to Senior title:

Eligible: regular lecturers, (not Visiting), in fifth year or later

Criteria:

Evidence of a sustained record of:

1. teaching excellence and innovation, as documented by student and peer evaluations and the teaching portfolio (See below);
2. participation in development of departmental curricula and course design;
3. regular participation in departmental, campus, and/or community initiatives related to teaching area;
4. continuing professional development and research related to areas of teaching expertise (for example, regular presentations at academic conferences, publications in peer-reviewed venues, textbook authorship, etc.).

Some evidence of achievement is desirable in each of these four areas, although it is expected that each candidate will show greater achievement in some areas than in others.
In evaluating the candidacy for promotion, the overall balance of achievement will be considered.

ƊMethods of evaluation:

1. A portfolio to be submitted by the candidate showing evidence of achievement in the four areas outlined above, and including a current c.v. in Provost Communication # 26 format, a statement of teaching philosophy, and a statement of research or public engagement. The candidate may choose which other materials to include (for example, sample syllabi, graded student work, etc.).

2. Written evaluations of teaching performance based on class observations, submitted independently by two separate observers.

3. Longitudinal ICES report covering the period since initial appointment or since last promotion.

4. Evaluation of the entire dossier by at least three reviewers external to the department, to be selected through a combination of names suggested by the candidate (from a list of at least four) and additional reviewers to be selected by the department. A majority of the external evaluators must come from the department’s rather than the candidate’s nomination.

Teaching Professorial Appointments

Teaching professors (assistant, associate, and full) are required to hold a PhD or equivalent highest degree and expertise in the relevant discipline. According to Provost Communication # 26 (p. 3), it is expected that the appointments in the teaching professor track will have at least 50% of effort assigned to teaching. According to the guidelines established by LAS, the teaching load must be more than that for tenure-stream faculty in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese. A typical appointment for teaching professors will be 60% teaching, 20% research and 20% service. This usually would imply a teaching load of 3 courses per semester (6 courses per year), but this can be reduced by one course (to 5 courses a year) if one is involved in substantial pedagogical roles besides teaching one’s own courses (e.g., supervising a large course, or supervising several courses with Teaching Assistants). Promotion to any levels within the teaching professional titles will be based on:

1. Making an instructional and curricular impact both within the department and the field, either through scholarly publications, invited talks, or other related activities involving the candidate’s discipline, pedagogy, public engagement, and student interactions.
2. Extraordinary record of teaching, classroom innovation, student interactions, and scholarly accomplishments.

Research Expectations
Although the percentage assigned to research for teaching professors is smaller than that of tenure track professors, the title of “professor” implies scholarly contributions beyond teaching. Thus, individuals in the teaching professor ranks are expected to engage in research activities that enhance the department’s and campus’s reputation beyond the local community. There are two ways that the research expectations can be met: by contributing to the scholarship of teaching in the disciplines represented in the department or by contributing to the scholarship of the Teaching Professor’s scholarly area of expertise (literature, cultures or linguistics) through publications in peer reviewed venues and presentations at academic conferences.

Teaching Assistant Professor

The candidate must demonstrate a record of instructional contributions to the department, college, campus and broader discipline. If this is the person’s first appointment on campus, the assignment to this rank will be based upon the candidate’s demonstrated ability to make such contributions.

To be considered for appointment as Teaching Assistant Professor, candidates provide:

a. A complete longitudinal record of ICES scores (or equivalent teaching evaluations if coming from another institution);

b. A current curriculum vitae in Provost Communication #26 format;

c. A teaching statement that summarizes the candidate’s teaching philosophy and teaching accomplishments, including contributions to the curriculum beyond their own classroom (no more than 3 pages single spaced);

d. Sample syllabi, assignments, and other teaching materials that provide evidence of the quality and effectiveness of the candidate’s instruction;

e. A research narrative that describes the candidate’s current research agenda and plan for contributing scholarship that enhances the department and university and makes an impact beyond the campus;

f. Copies of scholarly works (e.g., articles, conference papers) completed since the initial appointment or last promotion;

g. Evaluation of the entire dossier by at least three reviewers external to the department, to be selected through a combination of names suggested by the candidate (from a list of at least four) and additional reviewers to be selected by the department. Evaluators must be at or above rank of the promotion being sought. A majority of the external evaluators must come from the department’s rather than the candidate’s nomination.

Promotions within the Teaching Professor Ranks

Candidates’ promotion to the associate and professor ranks does not include “indefinite tenure.” To be promoted to the rank of Teaching Associate Professor, the Teaching Assistant Professor should demonstrate a record of having performed at the level of Teaching Assistant Professor for at least five years, and should have made contributions of an appropriate magnitude and quality in the specialized area(s) of teaching, scholarship, leadership and/or public engagement since initial appointment. This assessment must be supported by tangible, demonstrable evidence, such as

- Supervision of graduate teaching assistants
- Supervision of undergraduate students
- Development of course materials for use by other instructors
• Professional and/or scholarly activity related to discipline and/or pedagogy
• Leadership leading to significant curricular change
• Development of new courses
• Department and campus leadership in shared governance
• Improving teaching through innovations using technology or new pedagogical techniques.

According to Provost Communication # 26 (p. 4), promotion to teaching associate professor and teaching professor is based on the impact and maturity of the individual’s record of teaching, classroom innovation, student interactions, and scholarly accomplishments in pedagogy. To be promoted to the rank of Teaching Professor, the Teaching Associate Professor should demonstrate a record of having performed at the level of Teaching Associate Professor for at least five years, and should have made significant scholarly and educational contributions since last promotion, such as:
• Fulfilled promise of quality teaching and pedagogy, including making advancements in teaching and learning in the discipline that led to innovative and marked course improvement;
• Making broader and sustained contributions to scholarship, for example by sharing creative and scholarly work at conferences and in publications;
• Broader pedagogical contributions such as authoring textbooks that are published by reputable publishers;
• National and international visibility, including keynote and plenary talks at major conferences and professional meetings and/or invitations to contribute essays to scholarly volumes;
• Securing competitive grants to develop curricula or other pedagogical initiatives;
• Successful mentoring of instructors and lecturers.

To be considered for promotion to Teaching Associate Professor or Teaching Professor, candidates must provide:
a. A complete longitudinal record of ICES scores (or equivalent teaching evaluations if coming from another institution);
b. Their curriculum vitae in Provost Communication # 26 format;
c. A teaching statement that summarizes the candidate’s teaching philosophy and teaching accomplishments, including contributions to the curriculum beyond their own classroom (no more than 3 pages single spaced).
d. Sample syllabi, assignments, and other teaching materials that provide evidence of the quality and effectiveness of the candidate’s instruction.
e. A research narrative that describes the candidate’s current research agenda and plan for contributing scholarship that enhances the department and university and makes an impact beyond the campus;
f. Copies of scholarly works (e.g., articles, conference papers) completed since their last promotion

Evaluation of the entire dossier will be conducted by at least three scholars or professional specialists external to the University, to be selected through a combination of names suggested by the candidate (from a list of at least four) and additional reviewers to be selected by the department. A majority of the external evaluators must come from the department’s rather than the candidate’s nomination. The letters must come from individuals of appropriate rank (e.g., tenured professors and specialized faculty of a more senior rank) employed at peer institutions, and who can provide an objective evaluation without conflict of interest, as stated in Provost Communication #26 (p.11). In addition, the department may choose to solicit additional letters from outside the department but internal to the University. These internal evaluators should be outside the candidate’s normal reporting line.

Role and Composition of the Promotion Committee

A faculty committee consisting of 3 or 4 faculty members (at least two tenured associate or full professors) approves the promotion materials and works with the Head to prepare the dossier according to the guidelines established in Provost Communication # 26. The committee may include one Teaching Professor of rank above the candidate’s.

The candidate’s dossier will follow the multi-stage and independent review process at all levels (department, school, college, campus) as established in Provost Communication # 26.
